

BIOGRAPHY

Terry and Gyan Riley, a father and son duo, have been performing together extensively over the past 22 years. During this time, they have developed a telepathic, tightly integrated and unique type of performance that incorporates episodes of their compositions weaving them into a fabric of highly sophisticated improvisations. Over the years, the improvisational element has become even more spontaneous so that at times they compose new works without preplanning. The result is something that wouldn't be possible to notate or organizers before hand. The tools at hand are electric guitar with an array of effects pedals, acoustic piano, voice at, melodica, iPad musical apps and synthesizer.
